PREFACE.

In the preparation of this work, the special requirements of the University classes and Intermediate Examinations of our High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, have been kept in view.

Accompanying the notes is given a short analysis of the argument, which, it is hoped, will aid the student in more clearly understanding the oration.

For the purposes of explanation and illustration, frequent reference is made to the grammar, an industrious use of which will tend to secure a familiarity with the general and idiomatic structure of the language.

In regard to collateral matter given in connection with the biographical sketch, and the "Imitative Exercises" following the notes, while they have been found useful in class-work, they are not intended to supersede that subsidiary instruction which the experience of every good teacher will suggest.

Trusting that the book may prove serviceable in the preparation of this favorite oration, the editor commends it to the consideration of his co-laborers.

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF CICERO.

M. TULLIUS CICERO was born on the 3rd of January, B.C. 106, during the consulship of C. Atilius Serranus and Q. Servilius Cæpio, at a villa near Arpinum, a municipium in the S. E. part of Latium. His family, one of the most ancient and noble of the district, ranked among the Roman equites.

Cicero received the rudiments of his education in the house of his father, who devoted much time and study to the education of his sons. As soon as Marcus —who, at an early age, showed extraordinary talents —was sufficiently prepared for the higher branches of study, he was sent to Rome, where he devoted himself with zeal and success to the study of philosophy and oratory. In these subjects he enjoyed the instructions of the most renowned men of Greece and Rome. Under ARCHIAS he read the Greek poets and orators, composed in the Greek language, and also wrote Latin verse. In his sixteenth year he assumed the toga virilis, and henceforth became a zealous student of practical eloquence in the Forum ; at the same time he pursued the study of Roman law and rhetoric with such success that in his twenty-first year he wrote a work on rhetoric, a portion of which is still extant. In his twenty-sixth year, amply prepared, he entered upon his career as a public orator. He distinguished himself in it, almost without interruption, down to his death, displaying his skill and talent in the most varied circumstances, and standing forth as the greatest orator among his contemporaries, “the most consummate specimen of the Roman character under the influence of Hellenic culture.”

His orations, fifty-six of which have come down to us, are the mirror of his political career, and of the most important events of his life ; they are, moreover, the most brilliant monuments of Latin prose. “The fulness and harmony of his thoughts, the masterly manner and clearness with which he handles his subjects, the transparency and variety of forms, the overflowing and brilliant rhetorical diction, and the simple, unaffected narrative—all these qualities excite our admiration, and are found combined in each of his orations. The extant orations form only the smaller part of his literary productions ; we have, besides, a number of rhetorical and philosophical writings, and an exceedingly rich collection of letters.”—Zumpt.

Soon after his first appearance as an orator, and after he had acquired a reputation, he left Rome, and, for the purpose of strengthening his health, travelled through Greece and Asia Minor, where he enjoyed intercourse with several celebrated rhetoricians and philosophers. At the end of two years he returned with health completely restored, and prepared to commence that career of public advancement which culminated in the consulship, the highest object of a Roman's ambition. This distinction he gained when forty-three years of age.

During his occupancy of the offices of quæstor, ædile, and prætor, he had discharged his duties with zeal and fidelity. It was while ædile that he undertook the prosecution of Verres; while prætor he made his first appearance as a political speaker from the Rostra, in the delivery of an oration for the Manilian Law. During his consulship occurred the great conspiracy of Catiline, the successful suppression of which gained for him the proud title of Pater patriæ, and, for a time, the highest exaltation among his countrymen. The summary punishment of certain of the conspirators, without trial, eventually proved the ruin of Cicero. He went into exile, where he remained in the deepest gloom and despondency.

His mortal enemy, Clodius, a worthless demagogue, proposed a bill directly aimed at Cicero, to the effect that “whcever had put to death a Roman citizen, uncondemned in due form of trial, should be interdicted from fire and water.” Anticipating the result, he retired to Thessalonica, in a melancholy state of mind, and with his spirit nearly crushed by his prospective fall. Not possessed of a firm and resolute spirit such as could endure sudden misfortune, he here betrayed a weakness not unfrequently associated with his great foible—vanity, and an immoderate estimate of the value of his own services.

After an absence of sixteen months—a practical banishment—a bill for his recall was passed, through the exertions of his friends. His journey homeward was one continued ovation, and, on his arrival, many honours were conferred on him.

The part he took in the civil war was the turning point in his life. He regarded Cæsar as a usurper, applauded his assassination, and joined the party of the tyrannicides. For a similar reason, he denounced Antony, and attacked him with unsparing violence. In these trying times Cicero displayed more than usual courage. Intellectually superior to his contemporaries, his services, he knew, were needed by his country. Under these circumstances he again became the popular idol. This did not avail him, however; for, on the formation of the Second Triumvirate, Octavius, at the instigation of Antony, allowed Cicero's name to be placed on the fatal proscription list. The soldiers of Antony were soon started in pursuit. They overtook Cicero near Formiæ, where his head was severed from his body by the bravo Popilius. The hands were cut off, and the murderers carried them, with the head, to Antony, who caused them (in mockery of his triumphs in eloquence,) to be nailed to the rostra; while Fulvia, the widow of Clodius and the wife of Antonius, pierced with her needle the tongue which had dared to declaim against both her husbands. Thus, in the sixty-fourth year of his age, perished Cicero, a man who will ever stand pre-eminent as a specimen of the highest moral and intellectual culture.

CLASSIFICATION OF CICERO'S WORKS.

- I. POLITICAL.—Fifty-six speeches, several treatises on oratory, and semi-political writings on early Roman history.

- II. PHILOSOPHICAL.—Treatises on the Greek systems of philosophy succeeding Plato and Aristotle.
- III. PERSONAL.—Letters; 1st, to his friend Atticus; 2nd, to his brother, Quintus; 3rd, to his correspondents in general.
- IV. POETICAL.—Verses on the consulship, translation of Aratus, an epic (proposed) on Julius Cæsar's invasion of Britain.

LATIN AUTHORS.

The history of Roman literature embraces about eight centuries, from B.C. 250, to A.D. 550, and has been divided into three principal periods:—

- I. THE ANTE-CLASSICAL PERIOD—from B.C. 250, to B.C. 81.
- II. THE CLASSICAL PERIOD—from B.C. 81, to A.D. 14.
- III. THE POST-CLASSICAL PERIOD—from A.D. 180 to A.D. 550.

The principal authors of the Classical Period are:—

CICERO,
Cæsar,
Sallust,
Nepos,
Livy,
Virgil,

Horace,
Ovid,
Catullus,
Tibullus, Propertius.

A. LICINIO ARCHIA POETA ORATIC.

—o—

I.—1. Si quid est in me <sup>ingenio</sup>, iudices, quod sentio quam sit exiguum, aut si qua exercitatio dicendi, in qua me non infitior mediocriter esse versatum, aut si hujusce rei ratio aliqua ab optimarum artium studiis ac disciplina profecta, a qua ego nullum confiteor aetatis meae tempus abhorruisse, earum rerum omnium vel in primis hic A. Licinius fructum a me repetere prope suo jure debet; nam quoad longissime potest mens mea respicere spatium praeteriti temporis et pueritiae memoriam recordari ultimam, inde usque repetens hunc video mihi principem et ad suscipiendam et ad ingrediendam rationem horum studiorum exstis-tisse. Quod si haec vox, hujus hortatu praexceptisque conformata, nonnullis aliquando saluti fuit, a quo id accepimus quo ceteris opitulari et alios servare possemus, huic profecto ipsi, quantum est situm in nobis, et opem et salutem ferre debemus.—2. Ac ne quis anobis hoc ita dici forte miretur, quod alia quaedam in hoc facultas sit ingenii neque haec dicendi ratio aut disciplina, ne nos quidem huic uni studio penitus umquam dediti fuimus: etenim omnes artes, quae ad humanitatem pertinent, habent quoddam commune vinculum et quasi cognatione quadam inter se continentur.

II.—3. Sed ne cui vestrum mirum esse videatur me in quaestione legitima et in judicio publico, cum res agatur apud praetorem populi Romani, lectissimum virum, et apud severissimos judices, tanto conventu hominum ac frequentia, hoc uti genere dicendi quod non modo a consuetudine judiciorum, verum etiam a forensi sermone abhorreat (quaeso) a vobis, ut in hac causa mihi detis hanc veniam, accommodatam huic reo, vobis, quem ad modum spero, non molestam, ut me pro summo poëta atque eruditissimo homine dicentem, hoc concursu hominum litteratissimorum, hac vestra humanitate, hoc denique praetore exercente judicium patiamini de studiis humanitatis ac litterarum paulo loqui liberius et in ejus modi persona, quae propter otium ac studium minime in judiciis periculisque tractata est, uti prope novo quodam et inusitato genere dicendi.—4. Quod si inihi a vobis tribui concedique sentiam, perficiam profecto ut hunc A. Licinium non modo non segregandum; cum sit civis, a numero civium, verum etiam si non esset, putetis asciscendum fuisse.

III.—Nam ut primum ex pueris excessit Archias atque ab eis artibus, quibus aetas puerilis ad humanitatem informari solet, se ad scribendi studium contulit, primum Antiochiae—nam ibi natus est loco nobili—celebri quondam urbe et copiosa atque eruditissimis hominibus liberalissimisque studiis adfluenti, celeriter antecellere omnibus ingenii gloria contigit. Post in ceteris Asiae partibus cunctaque Graecia sic ejus adventus celebrabantur, ut famam ingenii exspectatio hominis, exspectationem ipsius adventus admiratione superaret.—5. Erat Italia tunc plena Graecarum artium ac disciplinarum studia quo haec et in Latio vehementius tum colebantur quam nunc eisdem in oppidis et hic Romae propter tranquillitatem rei publicae non negligebantur. Itaque hunc et Tarentini et Regini et Neapolitani civitate ceterisque praemiis donarunt et omnes, qui aliquid de ingeniosis poterant judicare, cognitione atque hospitio dignum existimarunt. Hac tanta celebritate famae cum esset jam absentibus notus, Romam venit (Mario) consule et (Catulo) Nactus est primum consules eos, quorum alter res ad scribendum maximas, alter cum res gestas tum etiam studium atque aures adhibere posset. Statim (Luculli,) cum praetextatus etiam tum Archias esset, eum domum suam receperunt. Sed etiam hoc non solum ingenii ac litterarum, verum etiam naturae atque virtutis, ut domus, quae hujus adolescentiae prima fuit, eadem esset familiarissima senectuti.—6. Erat temporibus illis jucundus Metello illi Numidico et ejus Pio filio, audiebatur a M. Aemilio, vivebat cum Q. Catulo et patre et filio, a L. Crasso colebatur, Lucullus vero et Drusum et Octaviō et Catonem et totam Hortensiorum domum devinctām consuetudine cum teneret, affiebatur summo honore, quod eum non solum colebant qui aliquid percipere atque audire studebant, verum etiam si qui forte simulabant.

IV.—Interim satis longo intervallo, cum esset cum M. Lucullo in Siciliam profectus et cum ex ea provincia cum eodem Lucullo ~~decederet~~, venit Heracliam: quae cum esset civitas aequissimo jure ac foedera, ascribi se in eam civitatem voluit, idque, cum ipse p̄ se dignus putaretur, tum auctoritate et gratia Luculli ab Heracliensibus impetravit.—7. Data est civitas Silvani lege et Carbonis, si qui foederatis civitatibus ascripti fuissent: si tum, cum lex ferobatur, in Italia domicilium habuissent et si sexaginta diebus apud praetorem essent professi. Cuin hic domicilium Romae multos jam annos haberet, professus est apud praetorem Q. Metellum familiarissimum suum.—8. Si nihil aliud nisi de civitate ac lege dicimus, nihil dico amplius, causa dicta est. Quid enim horum infirmari, Grati, potest? Heracliae esse tum ascriptum negabis? Adest vir summa auctoritate et religione et fide M. Lucullus, qui se non opinari, sed scire, non audisse, sed vidisse, non interfuisse, sed egisse dicit; adsunt Heraclienses legati, nobilissimi homines hujus judicii causa cum mandatis et cum publico testimonio venerunt, qui hunc ascriptum Heracliensem dicunt. Hic tu tabulas desideras Heracliensium publicas, quas Ital-ico bello incenso tabulario interisse scimus omnes. Est ridiculum ad ea, quae habemus, nihil dicere, quaerere, quae habere non possumus, et de hominum memoria tacere, littérarum meinoriam flagitare, et, cum habeas amplissimi viri religionem, integerimi municipii jus-jurandum fidemque, ea, quae depravari nullo modo possunt, repudiare, tabulas, quas idem dicas solere corrum-pi, desiderare.—9. An domicilium Romae non habuitis, qui tot annis ante civitatem datam sedem omnium re-rum ac fortunarum suarum Romae collocavit? At non est professus. Immo vero eis tabulis professus, quae solae ex illa professione collegioque praetorum obtinent publicarum tabularum auctoritatem.

V. Nam cum Appii tabulae négligéntius adserva-taē dicerentur, Gabinii, quām diū incolumis fuit, levitas, post damnationem calamitatis omnem tabularum fidem resignasset, Metellus, homo sanctissimus mo-destissimusque omnium; tanta diligentia fuit, ut ad L.
 Lentulū praetorem et ad judices venerit et unius nominis litura se commotum esse dixerit. In his igitur tabulis nullam liturām in nomine A. Licinii videtis:—
 10. Quae cum ita sint, quid est quod de ejus civitate dubitetis, praesertim cum aliis quoque in civitatibus fuerit ascriptus? Etenim cum mediocribus multis et aut nulla aut humili aliqua arte praeditis gratuito civitatem in Graecia homines impertiebant, Reginos credo aut

Locrenses aut Neapolitanos aut Tarentinos, quod scenicis artificibus largiri solebant id huic summa ingenii praedito gloria noluisse? Quid? Cum ceteri non modo post civitatem datam, sed etiam post legem Papiam aliquo modo in eorum municipiorum tabulas irrepserunt, hic, qui ne utitur quidem illis, in quibus est scriptus, quod semper se Heraclensem esse voluit, rejicietur?—11. Census nostros requiris ~~scilicet~~: est enim obscurum proximis censoribus hunc cum clarissimo imperatore L. Lucullo apud exercitum fuisse, superioribus cum eodem quaestore fuisse in Asia, primis Julio et Crasso nullam populi partem esse censam. Sed quoniam census non jus civitatis confirmat ac tantummodo indicat eum, qui sit census, ita se jam tum gessisse pro cive, eis temporibus, quibus tu criminariis ne ipsius quidem judicio in civium Romanorum jure esse versatum, et testamentum saepe fecit nostris legibus et adiit hereditates civium Romanorum et in beneficiis ad aerarium delatus est a L. Lucullo pro consule. Quaere argumenta, si qua potes: numquam enim hic neque suo neque amicorum judicio revincetur.

VI.—12. Quaeres a nobis, Grati, cur tanto opero hoc homine delectemur. Quia suppeditat nobis ubi et animus ex hoc forensi strepitu reficiatur et aures convicio defessae conquiescant. An tu existimas aut suppetere nobis posse quod quotidie dicamus in tanta varietate rerum, nisi animos nostros doctrina excolamus, aut ferre animos tantam posse contentionem, nisi eos doctrina eadem relaxemus? Ego vero fateor me his studiis esse deditum: ceteros pudeat, si qui se ita litteris abdiderunt, ut nihil possint ex eis neque ad communem adferre fructum neque in aspectum lucemque proferre: me autem quid pudeat, qui tot annos ita vivo, judices, ut a nullius umquam me tempore aut commodo aut otium meum abstraherit aut voluptas avocarit aut denique somnus retardarit?—13.

Quare quis tandem me reprehendat aut quis mihi jure succenseat, si quantum ceteris ad suas res ob-eundas, quantum ad festos dies ludorum celebrandos, quantum ad alias voluptates et ad ipsam requiem animi et corporis conceditur temporum, quantum alii tribuunt tempestivis conviviis, quantum denique aveolo, quantum pilae, tantum mihi egomet ad haec studia recolenda sumpsero? Atque hoc ideo mihi concedendum est magis, quod ex his studiis haec quo-que crescit oratio et facultas, quae, quantacumque in me est, numquam amicorum periculis defuit: quae si cui levior videtur, illa quidem certe, quae summa sunt, ex quo fonte hauriam sentio.—14. Nam nisi multorum praceptorum multisque litteris mihi ab adolescentia suasissem nihil esse in vita magno opere expetendum nisi laudem atque honestatem, in ea autem persequenda omnes cruciatus corporis, omnia pericula mortis atque exsilii parvi esse ducenda, numquam me pro salute vestra in tot ac tantas dimicationes atque in hos profligatorum hominum quotidianos impetus objecissem. Sed pleni omnes sunt libri, plenac sapientium voces, plena exemplorum vetustas; quae jacerent in tenebris omnia, nisi litterarum lumen accederet. Quam multas nobis imagines non solum ad intuendum, verum etiam ad imitandum fortissimorum virorum expressas scriptores et Graeci et Latini reliquerunt! Quas ego mihi semper in administranda re publica proponens animum et mentem meam ipsa cogitatione hominum excellentium conformabam.

VII.—15. Quaeret quispiam: quid? Ili ipsi summi viri, quorum virtutes litteris proditae sunt, istane doctrina, quam tu effers laudibus, eruditu fuerunt? Difficile est hoc de omnibus confirmare, sed tamen est certe quod respondeam. Ego multos homines excellenti animo ac virtute fuisse et sine doctrina naturae ipsius habitu prope divino per se ipsos et moderatos et graves exstisset fateor; etiam illud adjungo, saepius ad laudem atque virtutem naturam sine doctrina quam sine natura valuisse doctrinam. Atque idem ego contendeo, cum ad naturam eximiā atque illustrem accesserit ratio quaedam conformatioque doctrinae, tum illud nescio quid praeclarum ac singulare solere existere. 16.—Ex hoc esse hunc numero, quem patres nostri viderunt, divinum hominem Africanum, ex hoc C. Laelium, L. Furium, moderatissimos homines et continentissimos, ex hoc fortissimum virum et illis temporibus doctissimum,

M. Catonem illum senem ; qui profecto si nihil ad ~~ad eum~~ percipiendam colendumque virtutem litteris adjuva- ~~sup~~ rentur, numquam se ad ~~ad~~ earum studium contulissent.
Quod si non hic tantus fructus ostendetur et si ex his studiis delectatio sola peteretur, tamen, ut opinor, hanc animi adversionem humanissimam ac liberalissimam ~~judicaretis~~. Non ceterae neque temporum ~~pred.~~ sunt neque aetatum omnium neque locorum : haec studia adolescentiam alunt, senectutem oblectant, secundas res ornant, adversis perfugium ac solatium praebent, delectant domi, non impediunt foris, pernoctant nobiscum, peregrinantur, rusticantur.

VIII.—17. Quod si ipsi haec neque attingere neque sensu nostro gustare possemus, tamen ea mirari deberemus, etiam cum in aliis videremus. Quis noster tam animo agrasti ac duro fuit, ut Roscius morte nuper non commoveretur ? Qui cum esset senex mortuus, tamen propter excellentem artem ac venustatem videbatur omnino mori non debuisse. Ergo ille corporis motu tantum amorem sibi conciliarat a nobis omnibus : nos animoruni incredibiles motus celeritatemque ingeniorum negligemus ? Quoties ego hunc Archiam vidi, judices—utar enim vestra benignitate, quoniam me in hoc novo genere dicendi tam diligenter attenditis — quoties ego hunc vidi, cum litteram scripsisset nullam, magnum numerum optimorum ver-suum de eis ipsis rebus, quae tum agerentur, dicere ex tempore !—18. Quoties revocatum eandem rem dicere

mutatis verbis atque sententiis! Quae vero accurate cogitateque scripsisset, ea sic vidi probari, ut ad veterum scriptorum laudem perveniret. Hunc ego non diligam, non admirer, non omni ratione defendendum putem? Atque sic a summis hominibus eruditissimisque accepimus, ceterarum rerum studia et doctrina et praeceptis et arte constare; poëtam natura ipsa valere et mentis viribus excitari et quasi divino quodam spiritu inflari. Quare suo jure noster ille Ennius sanctos appellat poëtas, quod quasi deorum aliquo dono atque munere commendati nobis esse videantur.—19. Sit igitur, judices, sanctum apud vos, humanissimos homines, hoc poëtae nomen, quod nulla umquam barbaria violavit. Saxa et solitudines voci respondent, bestiae saepe immanes cantu flectuntur atque consistunt: nos instituti rebus optimis non poëtarum voce moveamur? Homerum Colophonii civem esse dicunt suum, Chii suum vindicant, Salaminii repetunt, Smyrnaei vero suum esse confirmant, itaque etiam delubrum ejus in oppido dedicaverunt; permulti alii praeterea pugnant inter se atque contendunt, IX.—Ergo illi alienum, quia poëta fuit, post mortem etiam expetunt: nos hunc vivum qui et voluntate et legibus noster est, repudiabimus? Praesertim cum omne olim studium atque omne ingenium contulerit Archias ad populi Romani gloriam laudemque celebrandam? Nam et Cimbricas res adolescens attigit et ipsi illi C. Mario, qui durior ad haec studia videbatur, jucundus fuit.—20. Neque enim quisquam est tam aversus a Musis qui non mandari versibus aeternum suorum laborum facile paeconium patiatur. Themistoclem illum, summum Athenis virum, dixisse aiunt, cum ex eo quaereretur, quod acroama aut cuius vocem libentissime audiret, ejus, a quo sua virtus optime praedicaretur. Itaque ille Marius item eximie L. Plotium dilexit, cuius ingenio putabat ea, quae gesserat, posse celebrari.—21. Mithridaticum vero bellum, magnum atque difficile et in multa varietate terra marique versatum, totum ab hoc expressum est ; qui libri non modo L. Lucullum, fortissimum et clarissimum virum, verum etiam populi Romani nomen illustrant. Populus enim Romanus aperuit Lucullo imperante Pontum et regiis quondam opibus et ipsa natura et regione vallatum ; populi Romani exercitus eodem duce non maxima manu innumerabiles Armeniorum copias fudit ; populi Romani laus est urbem amicissimam Cyzicenorum ejusdem consilio ex omni impetu regio atque totius belli ore ac faucibus ereptam esse atque servatam ; nostra semper feretur et praedicabitur L. Lucullo dimicante, cum imperfectis ducibus depressa hostium classis et incredibilis apud Tenedum pugna illa navalis ; nostra sunt tropaea, nostra monumenta, nostri triumphi ; quae quorum ingenii efferuntur, ab eis populi Romani fama celebratur.—22. Carus fuit Africano superiori noster

Ennius, itaque etiam in sepulcro Scipionum putatur is esse constitutus ex marmore ; at eis laudibus certe non solum ipse qui laudatur, sed etiam populi Romani nomen ornatur. In cælum hujus proavus Cato tolli-tur : magnus honos populi Romani rebus adjungitur.
Omnes denique illi Maximi, Marcelli, Fuvii non sine communi omnium nostrum laude decorantur.

X.—Ergo illum, qui haec fecerat, Rudinum hominem, majores nostri in civitatem receperunt; nos hunc Heracliensem, multis civitatibus expetitum, in hac autem legibus constitutum, de nostra civitate ejicimus?

23. Nam si quis minorem gloriae fructum putat ex Graecis versibus percipi quam ex Latinis, vehementer errat, propterea quod Graeca leguntur in omnibus fere gentibus, Latina suis finibus exiguis sane, continentur. Quare si res eae, quis gessimus, orbis terrae regionibus definiuntur, cupere debemus, quomanum nostrarum tela pervenerint, eodem gloriam famamque penetrare, quod cum ipsis populis, de quorum rebus scribitur, haec ampla sunt, tunc eis certe, qui de vita gloriae causa dimicant, hoc maximum et periculorum incitamentum est et laborum.—24. Quam multos scriptores rerum suarum magnus ille Alexander secum habuisse dicitur! Atque is tamen, cum in Sigeo ad Achillis tumulum adstitisset: ‘O fortunate’ inquit ‘adolescens, qui tuae virtutis Homerum praecōnē inveneris!’ Et vere. Nam nisi Illias illa exstitisset, idem tumulus, qui corpus ejus contexerat, nomen etiam obruisset. Quid? Noster hic Magnus, qui cum virtute fortunam adaequavit, nonne Theophanem Mytilenaeum, scriptorem rerum suarum, in concione militum civitate donavit, et nostri illi fortes viri, sed rustici ac milites, dulcedine quadam gloriae commoti, quasi participes ejusdem laudis, magno illud clamore approbaverunt?—25. Itaque, credo, si civis Romanus Archias legibus non esset, ut ab aliquo imperatore civitate donaretur, perficere non potuit. Sulla cum Hispanos donaret et Gallos, credo hunc petentem repudiasset? quem nos in concione vidimus, cum ei libellum malus poëta de populo subjecisset, quod epigramma in eum fecisset, tantummodo alternis versibus longiusculis, statim ex eis rebus, quas tunc vndebat, jubere ei praemium tribui, sed ea condicione, ne quid postea scriberet. Qui sedulitatem mali poëtae duxerit aliquo tamen ~~fuit~~ praemio dignam, hujus ingenium et virtutem in scribendo et copiam non expetisset?—26. Quid? A Q. Metello Pio, familiarissimo suo, qui civitate multos ~~perv~~ donavit, neque per se neque per Luculos impetravisset? Qui præsertim usque eo de suis rebus scribi cuperet, ut etiam Cordubæ natis poëtis, pingue quiddam sonantibus atque peregrinum, tamen aures suas dederet.

XI.—Neque enim est hoc dissimulandum, quod obscurari non potest, sed præ nobis ferendum: trahimur omnes studio laudis et optimus quisque maxime gloria dicitur. Ipsi illi philosophi etiam in eis libellis, quos de contemnenda gloria scribunt, nomen suum inscribunt; in eo ipso, in quo praedicationem nobilitatemque despiciunt, praedicari de se ac nominari volunt.—27. Décimus quidem Brutus, summus vir et imperator, Accii, amicissimi sui, carminibus tenui plorum ac monumentorum aditus exornavit suorum. Jam vero ille, qui cum Aetolis Ennio comite bellavit, Fulvius, non dubitavit Martis manubias Musis consecrare. Quare in qua urbe imperatores prope armati poëtarum nomen et Musarum delubra coluerunt, in ea non debent, togati judices a Musarum honore et a poëtarum salute abhorrere.

28. Atque ut id libentius faciatis, jam me vobis, judices, indicabo et de meo quodam amore gloriae, nimis acri fortasse, verum tamen honesto, vobis consitebor. Nam quas res nos in consulatu nostro vobiscum simul pro salute hujuscē imperii et pro vita civium proque universa re publica gessimus, attigit hic versibus atque inchoavit: quibus audiatis, quēde mihi magna res et jucunda visa est, hunc ad perficiendum adornavi. Nullam enim virtus aliam mercedem laborum periculorumque desiderat praeter hanc laudis et gloriae: qua quidem detracta, judices, quid est quod in hoc tam exiguo vitae curriculo et tam brevi tantis nos in laboribus exerceamus?—
29. Certe si nihil animus praesentiret in poste-

An vero fam parvi animi videamur esse omnes, qui in re publica atque in his vitae periculis laboribusque versamur, ut, cum usque ad extremum spatium nullum tranquillum atque otiosum spiritum duxerimus nobiscum simul moritura omnia arbitremur? An statuas et imagines, non animorum simularia, sed corporum, studiose multi summi homines reliquerint, consiliorum relinquere ac virtutum nostrarum effigiem nonne multo malle debemus, summis ingeniis expressam et politam? Ego vero omnia, quae gererem, jam tum in gerendo spargere me ac disseminare arbitrabar in orbis terrae memoriam sempiternam. Haec vero sive a meo sensu post mortem afutura est sive, ut sapientissimi homines putaverunt, ad aliquam mei partem pertinebit, nunc quidem certe cogitatione quadam speque delector.

NOTES,

CRITICAL AND EXPLANATORY,

ON THE

ORATION FOR THE POET ARCHIAS.

INTRODUCTION.

AULUS LICINIUS ARCHIAS, whom Cicero here defends, was a Greek poet, born at Antioch, in Syria, about B.C. 120. He early acquired a reputation among his countrymen for his poetical gifts and ready wit. During a somewhat extended course of travel in Asia Minor, Greece, and Southern Italy, he became a great favorite in refined society, and was the recipient of many honors. In B.C. 102 he came to Rome, AND WAS ONE OF THE TEACHERS OF CICERO. He was here admitted to the leading families, particularly by the Luculli, whose "gentile" name the poet adopted. After a sojourn here of some ten years, he accompanied L. Lucullus on a tour through Sicily, stopping on his way home at Heraclea, in Lucania, where he was admitted to the franchise.

This entitled him, under the Lex Plautia Papiria, to the rights of Roman citizenship, provided that, at the time the law was passed, he had a domicile in Italy ; and that, within sixty days, he "gave in his name" to one of the prætors. Archias at once availed himself of the provisions of this law, and registered his name before the prætor Quintus Metellus.

When the next census was taken (B.C. 83), Archias was absent from Rome, and, consequently, his name was omitted from the censor's list.

Taking advantage of this fact, one GRATIUS, who is otherwise unknown, brought an action against Archias of having illegally assumed the franchise, and, under the law above referred to, claimed that he should be expelled from Rome.

GRATIUS urged (1) that no documentary evidence existed of his enrolment as a citizen of Heraclea ; and (2) that his name did not appear on the Roman burgess-roll at any subsequent period.

CICERO replied (1) that Archias had been enrolled as a citizen of Heraclea, as was proved by her citizens and by Lucullus, though the documents in question could not be produced, since the archives of Heraclea had been destroyed by fire ; (2) that his client resided in Italy when the law was enacted ; (3) that within the sixty days specified he had presented his name to the prætor, as the record sufficiently showed.

The mere question of law furnished little scope for Cicero's eloquence, and he devoted the major part of his speech to praises of the humanizing effects of literary culture, adding a eulogy on the genius of Archias. The oration, therefore, is interesting rather from a literary than a legal point of view, while its popularity is due principally to the chapters which set forth the advantages of a liberal education.

The result of the trial and the subsequent career of Archias are unknown, but we may reasonably suppose that Cicero's pleading prevailed.

CHAPTERS I. AND II.

INTRODUCTORY.

Cicero acknowledges his indebtedness to Archias for benefits derived from his teachings. He ventures, therefore, to conduct the case in a way somewhat novel, and states the two points which he proposes to establish: (1) the legal right of Archias to citizenship; (2) that he deserved it by virtue of his superior genius.

* * * Numerals with "H" refer to sections of Harkness' Latin Grammar. Those in heavy-faced type refer to sections of the oration.

1. Quid ingenii, "any talent," "natural ability." Ingenii.... exercitatione....ratio, the three essentials of oratory—talent, theoretical knowledge of the art (ratio), and practical skill (exercitatio). Ratio, last in order, as he apparently wishes here to emphasize that for which he was indebted to Archias.

Judices, here rather "jurors." In this trial the "judices" did not preside, as with us, but the praetor, generally supposed to have been Q. T. Cicero, brother of the speaker.

Quod sentio....exiguum, "and I am aware how small it is." Quod subject of sit. H. 525.

In quā....esse, a hexameter.

Me....versatum, "I do not deny that I am moderately well versed." Me, subj. accus. of esse versatum, dep. on infitior. H. 551.

Hujusce....aliquis, "any theoretical knowledge of this thing," i.e., dicendi, of eloquence, and contrasted with exercitatio, practice.

Studiis, "the cultivation," diligent exercise of.

(Ab) profecta, (proficiscor), "proceeding from," "resulting from."

Optimarum artium, i.e., philosophy, history, grammar, rhetoric, and poetry.

A quā (sc. ratione), "from (the study of) which."

Abhorruisse, "has been free from," estranged. Cicero was a diligent student, carefully devoting even his leisure hours to reading.

Earum rerum, the three requisites above referred to.

Vel in primis, "even among the first," particularly.

Hic A. Licinius,—hic, demonstrative, "A. Licinius here" (in court). Cicero very artfully uses only the Roman part of his name, omitting the Greek, Archias—thus assuming his citizenship.

Fructum a me....debet, "is entitled to claim from me the fruit." Cicero here acknowledges his personal indebtedness to Archias.

Repetere, "to demand in return" (for his early teachings).

Prope suo jure, "as almost by his own right;" prope is restrictive.

Quoad....respicere, "as far back as my mind can possibly review."

Memoriam recordari, "call to mind the earliest recollections of my boyhood."

Inde usque repetens, "tracing down even from that time." Cicero was only five years old when Archias came to Rome.

Hunc mihi principem extitisse, "that he was (came forward) my chief guide."

Rationem studiorum, systematic course of study.

Conformata, "trained," moulded.

Nonnullis ...saluti, H. 390.

Ceteris....alios, "everybody else....the few others." These words imply that his services were at the disposal of all his friends, but that they could ensure the safety of only a limited number.

A quo; antecedent is huic ipsi, which is dat. after ferre.

2. Quod....sit. For subjunct., see H. 520, II.

In hoc, "in this man," i.e., Archias.

Neque....disciplina, "and not this theoretical knowledge and training of oratory." Aut instead of et, on account of the preceding negative.

Ne nos quidem, ("allow me to say) that I have not always been wholly (penitus) devoted to this one study," oratory.

Humanitatem, "liberal culture," including the development of those higher faculties which distinguish man from the lower animals.

Quasi cognatione quadam, "by a kind of relationship."

II. 3. In quæstione legitima, "in an inquiry depending on the statute law;" a legal question.

Judicio publico, "in a State trial," i.e., as affecting interests of the State, distinguished from causa privata, or iudicium privatum, a trial between individuals.

Cum res agatur, etc., "when a case is tried before a prætor of the Roman people, a most distinguished individual, and before judges of the gravest character." The epithet lectissimum, as applied to Cicero's brother, refers to the dignity of his office, and is not intended specially as a personal compliment.

Tanto conventu, "with so great an assemblage."

Hoc....genere....quod....abhoreat, "such a kind as differs." H. 419. Hoc=tali.

Verum etiam, used sixteen times in seven of Cicero's orations (seven times in this); Sed etiam, eighty-one times.

Vobis, dat. with molestam. H. 391, 1.

Me, take after patiamini.

Ut....patiamini, in apposition with hanc veniam.

Huic reo, "to the defendant."

Hac (=tali) vestra humanitate, "before men of your culture;" literally, "such being your liberal culture." H. 431, 2.

Hoc prætore, Q. Cicero, a historian, and said by his brother Marcus to have been a better poet than himself; certainly a man of critical refinement and taste.

Exercente judicium, "conducting the trial," i.e., presiding at the trial.

Liberius, "more freely than usual."

In ejusmodi persona, "in the case of a character of this kind." Archias is referred to.

Otium ac studium, "on account of his retired life and literary taste" (or pursuits).

Minime tractata est, "has been very seldom presented (handled) in courts and trials." Tractata and persona, terms pertaining to the stage. Derive persona.

Nova quodam....dicenti, "a style of speaking somewhat new and unusual;" i.e., his employing a somewhat informal mode of conducting a case in court. See introduction.

4. Perficiam....ut....putetis, "I shall certainly cause you to think;" literally, "that you may think." H. 492.

Segregandum (esse), in opposition to ascendendum fuisse. What would be the form of the latter verb if in the oratio recta? H. 510, 2.

CHAPTER III.

SKETCH OF EARLY LIFE OF ARCHIAS.

His intellectual power was noticeable from childhood, first in Antioch, then in Southern Italy, and lastly at Rome, where he enjoyed the patronage of the leading literary men.

Nam ut primum, “now as soon as,” nam, confirmatory of previous remark, = “for” or “now.”

Ex pueris, more usually a pueris, “from boyhood;” (Greek,  $\epsilon\kappa\pi\alpha\delta\hat{\omega}\nu$ ). Archias, at the time referred to, was about fifteen years of age, the limit of “boyhood” in Greece. What was the corresponding age in Rome? (See Résumé.)

Artibus, construe with contulit.

Ad humanitatem...solet, “is accustomed to be trained (moulded) to liberal knowledge.”

Ad scribendi studium, “the study of (poetic) composition.”

Primum, “first;” find its correlative.

Antiochiae, “at Antioch.” H. 421, II. The Syrian Antioch, on the River Orontes, built by Seleucus Nicator, B.C. 300.

Loco nobili, “of a noble family.” H. 422, 1, 1).

Celebri, “populous,” or “much frequented.” For abl. in apposition to locative, see H. 423, 3, 3).

Adfluenti, “rich,” abounding. Notice the zeugma.

Contigit (ei) antecellere, “it happened to him,” i.e., “it was his good fortune to excel all (others) in the splendour of his genius.” Said to be the only case in which Cicero uses the infinitive with contigit.

Asia, i.e., Asia Minor, in this case including Syria.

Sic.... celebrantur, "his arrivals were so much talked of, that the expectation of (desire of seeing) the man exceeded the fame of his talents, and his own coming itself, and the admiration he excited surpassed the expectation of him," i.e., which his coming had occasioned.

Adventus, plural, to indicate his arrival at the various places.

Famam, object of superaret.

5. Italia, Southern Italy, or Magna Græcia; so also in the next sentence.

Græcarum artium, etc., "of Grecian arts and refinement."

Studiaque, "liberal studies."

Vchementius.... oppidis, "were cultivated more arduously than they are now cultivated in these towns."

Non negligebantur, "and they were not neglected," i.e., they were carefully attended to. What figure?

Tranquilitatem. Rome had rest from agrarian troubles, B.C. 121, and was not yet disturbed by the social war, B.C. 90; so that both at Rome and its dependent cities there was a chance for literary pursuits.

Civitate, "with citizenship." H. 384, 1. This custom of admitting foreigners prevailed in Greek colonies, not in Rome. Archias had enjoyed the citizenship of the three principal cities of Southern Italy.

Qui.... judicare, "who could form any correct judgment of his talents." Aliquid here=anything (important).

Cognitione atque hospitio. Why abl.? H. 419, IV.

Hac famæ, "in consequence of this so great distinction of fame."

Absentibus, lit., "to those absent," i.e., before they saw him. Absens has a wider application in Latin than in English, and may refer to either of the parties separated from each other.

Mario.... Catulo, usually Mario et Cutulo consulibus, (abl. abs.), B.C. 102, fourth consulship of Marius. The latter expressed contempt for literary pursuits ; Catulus, however, was fond of literature.

Eos=tales, “such”; quorum=ut eorum.

Alter, “the one,” i.e., Marius, whose victorious campaign against the Cimbri and Teutones was celebrated by Archias.

Alter, “the other,” i.e., Q. Lutatius Catulus, who, as a soldier, shared in Marius’ victory over the Cimbri (res gestas) ; and, as a man of letters, was able to judge of literary productions. Hence studium atque aures, “a love of letters and an appreciative ear.”

Posset. What subjunctive? H. 489.

Luculli, two brothers, Licinius and Marcus. The former was at this time absent in Sicily ; his sons were as yet quite young. The reception referred to must, therefore, have been by some of the less conspicuous members of this family.

Prætextatus, “a mere youth,” wearing the toga prætexta, the garb of boyhood, laid aside at seventeen, when the toga virilis was assumed. Strictly speaking, these terms could be applied to none but Roman boys.

Sed etiam....ingenii, “but this, we may add, is a proof not only of his natural ability and literary acquirements, but also of his good natural disposition and moral worth.” How account for case of ingenii? H. 402, I., supplying erat.

Eadem, H. 451, 3.

Domus, i.e., that of the Luculli.

Senectuti, “to him in old age ;” yet Archias was not sixty years old.

6. Temporibus illis, the period between his arrival at Rome and his leaving Italy.

Metello illi Numidico, “that celebrated Numidicus.” This agnomen was added for his victories over Jugurtha, king of Numidia, B.C. 107.

Pio filio, son of this Numidicus, surnamed Pius, from his earnest entreaties for his father’s release from exile. B.C. 108. On this occasion the son appeared in mourning.

M. Aemilius (Scaurus), consul B.C. 115, and a leader of the aristocratic party during Archias' first visit to Rome.

Vivebat cum, “he associated with.”

Q. Catullo; for Catullo, vide ante. The son, a prominent politician and supporter of Cicero against Catiline.

Audiebatur, “he was listened to.”

Colebatur, “he was highly esteemed.”

L. Crasso, the celebrated orator; consul B.C. 95.

Drusum (M. Livius), a tribune of the people; killed in his own house, B.C. 91, amid the agrarian disturbances of this period.

Octavios, “the two Octavios,” Cneius and Lucius.

Catonem, probably M. Porcius Cato, father of Cato Uticensis.

Hortensiorum, Lucius and Quintus; the latter Cicero's rival in oratory.

Devinctam consuetudine, “united to him by ties of friendly intercourse.”

Quod colebant, etc., “because (since) not only those cultivated his acquaintance who really desired to listen to him, with a view of making some literary acquisition, and become his hearers, but those, if such there were, who pretended to have such a desire. Supply se studere.

CHAPTERS IV. AND V.

PROOF OF HIS CLIENT'S CITIZENSHIP.

Admitted to the franchise of Heraclea; his citizenship here proved by unimpeachable testimony; his name found in the list of L. Metellus, the most accurate of praetors; his residence at Rome could be proved in many ways.

Satis longo intervallo, “after a somewhat long interval.” For case of intervallo, H. 431.

In Siciliam. Generally supposed to have been an unofficial tour on the part of Lucullus.

Dcederet. Any special reason for impf.? H. 468, 477.

Heracliam, a city of Lucania, on the Bay of Tarentum, between the rivers Aciris and Siris. Why in acc.? H. 379. Founded from Thurii and Tarentum, B.C. 432. Its influence in the war with Pyrrhus was so great, that the inhabitants succeeded in making a treaty with the Romans on very favorable terms. Treaty kept for over 200 years.

Quæ cum esset civitas, etc., "and since this State enjoyed very favorable privileges and treaty-rights." Notice the zeugma in æquissimo. For this use of abl., see H. 428. Æquissimo, suggestive of supposed equality with Rome. This is confirmed by the fact that the inhabitants of Heraclea doubted whether they would improve their condition by accepting the privilege of the Lex Papiria.

Putaretur. Why subjunc.? H. 587, I., 5.

7. Data est civitas, etc., "the rights of citizenship were conferred by the law of Silanus and Carbo, if any persons had been enrolled in confederated states, if at the time the law was passed they had a domicile in Italy, and if, within sixty days, they made a public declaration before the prætor."

Lege. Passed B.C. 89. See Introduction.

Si qui, literally, "if any;" = iis qui, "to those who." Iis, indirect object of data est.

Civitatibus. See H. 386; (ad in composition).

Ferebatur. Why indicative in subord. sent. of oratio obliqua? H. 527, 2, 1.

Multos annos, about twelve years. For accus., H. 378.

Professus est, "gave in his name."

8. Si nihil aliud, etc., "if we are to speak (treat) of nothing except his citizenship (at H.) and the bearing of the law in his case, I (shall) say nothing more: the defence is finished."

Grati. What Nouns take voc. sing. in i? H. 45, 5, 2).

Tum, "at the time in question," his visit to Heraclea with Lucullus.

Summa auctoritate et religione et fide, "of the highest credit, the strictest probity, and the most scrupulous integrity." For abl., H. 428. Why "religio"?

Se non opinari, "that he does not (merely) think it was so, but that he knows it to be so; that he did not hear of it (from others), but that he witnessed it; that he was not present (merely), but that he accomplished it." See auctoritate....Luculli above.

Cum mandatis, etc., "with full credentials, and the official testimony (of their city)." Gratius having denied that Archias was a citizen of Heraclea, the witnesses from that city, unable to bring the original documents, at the suggestion of Cicero brought such other written testimony as was likely to confirm the claims of Archias.

Hic, etc., "here (under the circumstances) you require the public registers"—the certified list of citizens.

Tabulas publicas, "State records."

Italico bello. Called also the Social or the Marsic war, B.C. 90-88. The Marsi began it in their attempt to secure the rights of Roman citizenship. Abl.? H. 426.

Tabulario, "the registry office," the depository of public records; generally in a temple.

Ea, the testimony of reliable men.

Quæ habere non possumus. Referring to the register unfortunately burnt during the Social War.

Literarum memoriam flagitare, "to demand the evidence of the records." Notice the two meanings given to memoria: 1st, the faculty of memory; 2nd, the thing remembered; i.e., the record.

Cum habeas, "although you have."

Viri, of Lucullus.

Religionem, the testimony; i.e., the solemn declaration.

Integerrimi. Heraclea so termed by reason of its loyalty during the Social War.

Jusjurandum fidemque, "the oath and the honor." Distinguish municipium from civitas fœderata. Notice the construction of the infinitives dicere, quererere, repudiare, desiderare, as subjects of cst (ridiculum).

Quas idem dicis, “which you yourself say;” a remark made by Gratius concerning the records of Metellus.

Idem=ipse, following tu, as subject of dicis. H. 451, 3.

So quum dicut, negat idem, “though he asserts, yet he (the same) denies.”—Cicero

9. An domicilium, etc., “had he not his domicile at Rome?” Some editions give “At domicilium in Italia,” etc., “but (you will say) he had not his domicile in Italy,” anticipating an objection of Gratius. In Italia, as given in chap. 4, appears more in harmony with the evident requirement of the law in question.

Tot annis. H. 427, 1, 2).

Ante civitatem datam. H. 580.

Rerum ac fortunarum, “of all his effects and fortunes.”

At....professus, “but (you may say) he did not make his claim.” Cicero here anticipates and answers a second objection.

Quæ solæ ex illa, “which alone, out of all the declarations of citizenship, and connected with the board (college) of prætors, have the authority of public records,” i.e., of all the records made at that time by the several prætors, those of Q. Metellus alone were trustworthy. The registers of Appius and Gabinius are next contrasted with those of Metellus.

Nam cum, etc., “for while the tables of Appius were said to be kept too carelessly, and whereas the disreputableness (frivolity) of Gabinius, as long as he was uncondemned, and his utter ruin after his impeachment, took away all credit from his tables; Metellus (on the other hand), a man the most just and most scrupulous of all, was characterized by so much carefulness (in his official duties), that he came to L. Lentullus, the prætor, and the judges, and said that he was much disturbed (affected) by the erasure of a single name.”

Appii, probably A. C. Pulcher, father of Cicero’s enemy, P. Clodius.

Damnationem. Gabinius was condemned for extortion in his position as praetor of Achaia, B.C. 88.

Resignasset, referring to the removing of a seal from a document.

Venerit. For tense, H. 482, 2.

His, in emphatic contrast to those of Appius and Gabinius.

In nomine (or, in nomen), etc., “you see no erasure in the name of A. Licinius.”

10. Quid est....dubitatis, “why should you hesitate?” H. 501, I. 1).

Præsertim cum, “especially as he appears on the burgess-rolls of other cities as well.” No proof, however, is adduced of any such record; evidently his enrolment at Heraclea being thought sufficient to establish his claim.

Mediocribus multis, “on many persons of moderate abilities, either with no special qualifications (profession) at all, or else some humble one.”

Arte, abl. after præditis. H. 419, III. So gloria below.

Graccia, Southern Italy, as appears from the context.

Credo, etc., “I am to believe, I suppose, that the inhabitants of Rhegium, Locri, Neapolis, or Tarentum, were not willing to bestow that privilege on this individual, though enjoying a very high reputation for talents, which they were accustomed to bestow freely on stage-players.”

Credo....noluisse, used ironically. “Stage artists,” as a profession (histriones, Διονυσιακοὶ τεχνῖται), were not held in very high repute by the Romans.

Solebant. Why indic.?

Quid? “What!” Expressing astonishment at the thought of depriving Archias of a privilege granted to his inferiors.

Post civitatem datam, “after the right of citizenship was given” (to the allied cities).

Legem Papium, B.C. 65, which banished aliens from Rome. Many foreigners, however, evaded the law by secretly registering in free towns. Corrupt magistrates, in certain cases, permitted the irregularity.

Illis (tabulis) of other cities. For case, II. 419.

11. Census nostros, “you ask us for our census rolls.” Scilicet, “and no wonder,” or “forsooth.” Cicero has to admit that the name of Archias would not be found on the register.

Est enim obscurum, “for it is not known (it seems);” irony, == “it is well known.”

Proximis censoribus, “at the time of the last census,” B.C. 70. Archias at this time was apud exercitum (in attendance upon Lucullus), against Mithridates.

Hunc, Archias.

Superioribus, “under the censors next preceding,” B.C. 86.

Cum eodem questore, “with the same man, then quæstor,” (Lucullus).

Primis, “the first,” after Archias was admitted to the citizenship. This census, under Cæsar and Crassus, was necessary in consequence of the admission of eight new tribes. The censorship was dispensed with under the rule of Sulla.

Esse censam, “was rated.” For accus. with infin., see H. 551.

Sed quoniam, etc., “but since the mere enrolment does not of itself establish the right of citizenship.”

Sit census, subj. of “essential part.” H. 527, 2, 2).

Ita. By the fact of his registering; supply ut censeri posset.

Eis temporibus, etc., “at those very times when (in which) you allege that he ;” supply eum. The reading eis temporibus quæ is given by some, where quæ=quoad, “in reference to which.”

Adiit hereditates, “succeeded to inheritances,” the legal term for taking possession of property left by will.

In beneficiis, etc., “had been recommended to the treasury for reward (or promotion).” Roman governors usually reported the names of persons who had specially distinguished themselves (beneficiarii). The fact that Archias was thus noticed was an admission of his citizenship.

Pro consule. The term of the consulship of Lucullus ended B.C. 74, but he remained as proconsul till B.C. 66.

Quære argumenta, etc., “search out other arguments (against his claim) if you can (find them).”

Nunquam, neque. For this use of the two negatives, H. 585, 2.

Suo judicio, “by his own opinion,” i.e., by any facts which go to show that he did not regard himself entitled to citizenship.

Revincetur, “to be proved to be no citizen.”

The argument proper here closes. Cicero devotes the rest of the oration to a panegyric on Archias.

CHAPTERS VI. AND VII.

VALUE OF POETRY AND LETTERS.

Cicero found in the congenial society of Archias the intellectual refreshment which he needed for his work. His own literary pursuits greatly conduced to the value and success of his advocacy. A liberal education is not essential to real virtue; but among the most perfect characters are those whose natures have been refined by literary and philosophical pursuits.

12. Tanto opere=tantopere, abl. of manner.

Quia suppeditat, etc., “(I will tell you) it is because he furnishes that with which.”

Ubi=(id) quo, abl. of means; repeat ubi before auras—here= in quo.

Reficiatur. Why subj.? H. 500.

Convicio, "with the wrangling of litigants," in the court-room. The student should notice the inceptive force of conquiescant, "may begin to find repose." H. 281.

Suppetere nobis posse, "that we can have what to say," literally, "that these should be present (furnished) to us," etc.

Quod. Construction?

Varietate rerum, "variety of causes."

Contentionem, "tension," a figure borrowed from the bending of a bow, and suggesting relaximus, "unbend," which follows.

Studiis, "literary pursuits."

Se ita litteris abdiderunt, "have so buried themselves in studies," or books. More commonly, in litteras se abdere. Litteris, abl. of instrument (of seclusion); though some regard it as dative—"in which" the student finds repose.

Ut possint adferre, etc., "as to have been able to contribute nothing resulting (no fruit) from these (studiis) to the common (weal), nor to bring forth anything to the view (of their fellows), and the clear light (of day)." Notice the striking contrast between the pursuits referred to in abdiderunt, and aspectum lucemque.

Me....pudeat; construc. of me and quid? Why subj.? H. 486, II.

Vivo, pres.=perf., "have lived." H. 467, 2.

Ut a nullius....abstraxerit, "a regard for leisure has never kept me from defending any one in peril, or protecting him in his rights."

Tempore=danger, crisis=peculiar circumstances at any given time. Its meaning in Cicero often determined only by context. Here in antithesis to commodo, interests, rights.

13. Quis (est qui) reprehendat, etc. For mood, see pudcat above. Ad suas res, "for celebrating festal days"—days dedicated to the gods, devoted to religious services, games, feasts, etc. Notice the gerundial construction. H. 562.

Tempestivis conviviis, "to protracted banquets," sometimes commencing before the usual hour (three in summer and four in winter), and continuing late into the night.

Ceteris alii, in contrast with egomet. Distinguish ceteris from alii here.

Alveolo....pilæ, “the gaming-table....to ball-playing.” The latter a favorite exercise with the Romans. Some editions give aleæ, “to gaming.”

Ad recolenda, “for reviewing (cultivating again) these studies (of my youth).”

Ideo has its explanation in the clause quod....facultas, “because it is from these studies that this oratorical ability (oratio et facultas) is increased.” For the hendiadys in oratio....facultas, see H. 704, 2, =orationis facultas.

Quæ....illa. The former refers to his oratorical ability; the latter to his literary studies, or to such philosophical principles and maxims as are of practical use in life. Haurium, dep. question. H. 525. Object of sentio?

14. Nam nisi....litteris, etc., “for, had I not persuaded myself from my youth by the (philosophical) precepts of many, and (a knowledge of many) literary works (=much reading), that there was nothing in life greatly to be sought after except (merited) praise and an honorable reputation (honor),” etc.

Litteris. H. 132.

In ea (honestate), and implying and including laus.

Parvi, “of small account.” For case, H. 402, III., 1. What governs inf. esse?

Pro salute vestra, referring to his defeat of Cataline, the leader of profligatorum hominum. What genitive? H. 396, I.

Quæ jacerent....accederet, “which would all lie (buried) in darkness, unless the torch of literature were brought to bear on it.”

Quam multas, etc., “how many delineations of the bravest men.”

Expressas, “drawn to the life,” an expression borrowed from modelling.

Non solum ad intuendum, follows expressus; “drawn....not only,” etc.

Imitandum. By what general rule can the gerund be distinguished from the gerundive? Which have we in administranda; H. 559, 562.

15. Quæreret....fuerunt, “some one will ask: ‘what! were those distinguished men themselves, whose virtues (great qualities) have been handed down in literary works, instructed in that learning which you (so much) exalt by your praises?’”

Difficile est. Why est? (= Longum est, “it would be tedious”). Cicero evidently presents the difficulty as if being actually experienced.

Est certe: subject? Cicero is not at a loss for an answer.

Animo....virtute, what abl.? H. 428.

Moderatos et graves, “men of prudence and character (influence).

Ad laudem valuisse, “has oftener been effectual in attaining glory and virtue.”

Atque idem ego, “and, at the same time, I.” On idem, II. 451, 3.

Contendo. Select its dependent clauses.

Ratio quædam....doctrinæ, “a certain (systematic) training and moulding of the powers through learning;” lit., “of learning.”

Illud nescio quid, “that I know not what.” Quid=aliquid.

Solere, subject? Why inf.?

16. Ex hoc numero, “of this number,” i.e., of those who have added culture to great natural abilities.

Africanum, the younger Scipio; “Africanus,” from his conquest of Carthage. Notice the force of hunc.

C. Lælium, a friend of this Scipio, and celebrated in “De Amicitia.”

L. Furium, a contemporary, also devoted to Greek literature. Consult Cicero’s “De Republica.”

Illis temporibus doctissimum, “a very learned man for (in) those times.”

M. Catonem, the censor. He commenced the study of Greek literature when quite advanced in years; aged eighty-five at death, hence senem. Note the force of ille. Subject of Cicero's “Cato Major.”

Qui projecto, “these, certainly.”

Ad percipiendam virtutem. Which word is governed by ad? “In comprehending and practising virtue.”

Adjuvantur, etc., “had they not derived continual aid.” Why impf.? H. 486, 4; 510, 1.

Adversionem, etc., “you would regard this mode of employing the mind as most appropriate to a man of culture, and to a liberal-minded citizen.”

Nam ceteræ, etc., “for all other pursuits (remissiones) are restricted and not suited to all times, nor to every age and place.”

Secundas res. H. 441, 4.

Rusticantur; “they go with us to our country villas.”

CHAPTERS VIII. AND IX.

REMARKABLE POETICAL TALENTS OF ARCHIAS

This of itself should entitle him to citizenship, especially as he has proved his devotion to the land of his adoption, by celebrating Roman victories in his verses.

17. Quod si, etc., “and even if we ourselves could neither prosecute these studies, nor taste (the pleasure) by our own perceptions.”

Tum agresti ac duro, “so rude and unfeeling.”

Roscii morte, “by the death of R.” A celebrated comedian, supposed to have been a native of Gaul, and one of Cicero’s instructors in elocution. This is the only passage which definitely refers to his death.

Qui cum esset, etc., “who, though he died an old man, yet on account of his extraordinary skill and grace, seemed as if he ought not to die at all.”

Cum=“although.” H. 515.

Ergo ille, etc., (argument a fortiori), “he, thereupon, merely by the movement of his body, conciliated so much affection from us all.”

Incredibiles, “surpassing belief.”

Celeritatem, “the rapid action.”

Utar enim, “for I will avail myself” (use).

In hoc....dicendi (see chap. II.), “in which I am wandering so far from the point.”

Cum litteram scripsisset, “when he had not written a single letter.” H. 132; 518, II.

Quae tum agerentur, “which were then under discussion.” H. 527, 3.

Ex tempore, “off-hand;” results due rather to natural genius or “inspiration,” than to studied effort.

18. Revocatum (vidi eum), “when requested to repeat;” when encored, as we would say.

Commutatis....sententiis, “with a complete change of words and thoughts.”

Ut ad....perveniret, “that he attained to the praise.”

Veterum scriptorum, “of the old writers;” i.e., bestowed on the celebrated Greek poets and authors.

Sic. H. 704, II. 6.

Doctrina constare, “depends upon learning.” H. 414, 2, 1).

Natura ipsa valere, “is powerful by (the powers of) nature herself;” i.e., derives his power, etc.

Quasi dirino quodam, etc., "as it were by a kind of divine inflatus." H. 456, 2.

Suo jure, "in his own right." See chap. I., sec. 1.

Ille Ennius, "our well-known Ennius," often called the father of Roman song; born in Calabria B.C. 239; composed tragedies in imitation of Greek tragedians, satiric dramas, etc. Served as centurion in the second Punic War; died B.C. 184.

Quod....videantur, "since they seem to come recommended to us in the light as it were of some eminent gift from (of) the gods." H. 520, II.

19. Humanissimos homines, "men of the highest culture," in contrast to nulla barbaria. Poetæ, H., 396. V.

Saxa et solitudines, etc., "rocks and deserts respond to his voice." The reference is probably to Orpheus, who is credited with having not only charmed wild beasts, but even with having moved trees and rocks by the power of his music.

Colophonii, "the citizens of Colophon," a city of Ionia in Asia Minor. Chii, "citizens of Chios," now Scio, an island in the Ægean Sea.

Salamis, an island in the Saronic Gulf.

Smyrna, in Ionia. The names of the cities thus claiming Homer are given in the verse,

"Smyrna, Rhodus, Colophon, Salamis, Chios, Argos, Athenæ."

The claim of Smyrna is now regarded as the best.

Cicero argues: "If so many cities contended for the honor of being the birth-place of Homer, Rome should not disregard the honor of having such a distinguished poet as Archias as one of her citizens."

Delubrum ejus. Strabo says that he saw τὸ Ὁμύρειον in Smyrna.

Alienum. Homer was, of course, alienus to six out of the seven cities.

Hunc vivum, "this man while still alive,"—Archias.

Noster, "our countryman."

Olim, “already for a long time.”

Studium....ingenium, “zeal....talent.”

Cimbricas res attigit, “he attempted the subject of the Cimbrian War, i.e., the campaign of Marius and Catulus against the Cimbri, B.C. 102.

Adolescens. H. 363, 3.

Ipse illi C. Mario, “to the celebrated C. M. himself.” Note the force of illi. H. 450, 5.

Durior ad, “too rugged for,” i.e., incapable of appreciating these literary pursuits.

20. Qui non....patiantur, “as not readily to allow.”

Praconium, literally, “the heralding.”

Themistoclem illum, “that celebrated Themistocles.”

Athenis. Case? H. 421.

Quod acroama, “what agreeable sound,” i.e., performer. Ex Greek ἀκροάματι, and in Latin more frequently used of the singer than the song. An indirect question here; hence subj. “What theme or whose voice he listened to with the greatest pleasure.”

A quo....predicaretur (obj. of dixisse), “his by whom his own merits were best proclaimed.”

L. Plotinum—an orator and rhetorician, who, it is said, established the first school of rhetoric at Rome.

21. Mithridaticum bellum, etc., “the whole Mithridatic war....has been described in verse by my friend here.”

Totum, the whole of the war in which Lucullus was engaged; B.C. 73-66.

Qui libri, “these books,” of the poem of Archias.

Lucullo imperante, “with Lucullus as commander;” abl. abs.

Pontum, a country in north-east part of Asia Minor, south of Euxine.

Natura et regione vallatum, “though defended by the natural character of the district;” literally, “by nature herself and the district." What figure? H. 704, II. 2. Pontus was protected on the north by the sea, enclosed on the other sides by mountains, and guarded by seventy-five fortresses."

Armeniorum....fudit. In B.C. 69, Tigranes was defeated by Lucullus; the army of the former, 200,000; that of the latter, 10,000. Tigranes remarked on seeing the Romans, "If they come as ambassadors, they are too many; if as soldiers, too few." They however proved more than a match for the Armenians.

Populi Romani laus est, "to the Roman people belongs the praise."

Cyzicus, a city of Mysia, in alliance with Rome; besieged by Mithridates, but relieved by Lucullus, B.C. 73.

Ore ac faucibus, etc., "and from the devouring jaws of the entire war." Notice the spirited reference in these words.

Nostra....predicabitur, "will be reported and celebrated as ours." Construe nostra with pugna, subject of feretur and predicabitur.

Pugna navalis. Lucullus here destroyed the fleet of Mithridates, B.C. 73.

Tenedum, near the site of ancient Troy.

Nostra....monumenta, "ours are the trophies, ours the monuments; ours the triumphs."

22. Africano superiori, Africanus Major.

In sepulchro, "on the tomb." The tomb of the Scipios is still to be seen near the Porta Capena on the Appian Way.

Hujus proavus Cato, "Cato, great grandfather of this Cato." Hujus would lead us to suppose he was in court.

Omnes. These names are all prominently connected with the second Punic war. Maximus, called "the shield of Rome;" Marcellus, "the sword of Rome."

CHAPTER X.

The fame of Archias was more extended and enduring, because he wrote in Greek; and, had he not been a citizen already, he might have been rewarded with this privilege by the generals in whose praise he had sung.

Illum....Rudinum hominem, “him (Ennius) a native of Rudiæ.” This native of a place so obscure is here strongly contrasted with Archias of Heraclea.

23. Græcis versibus. Archias wrote in Greek; Ennius in Latin.

Orbis....definiuntur, “are bounded only by the limits of the world.”

Quo....pervenerint, “that wherever the weapons of our hands have reached.” Why subj.? H. 527, 3.

Quod cum....ampla sunt, “because as these things are honorable in a high degree for the people themselves.”

Hæc=having one’s deeds celebrated in literary works.

De vita, “at the peril of life.”

Periculorum incitamentum, “inducement to face dangers and toils;” lit., of perils and labors.

24. Scriptores rerum suarum, “historians of his exploits.” Among these were Aristobulus, Ptolemaus and Anaximenes. Their works are now lost.

Cum....alstitisset, “when he stood on the Sigeum.” H. 518, II. Sigeum, a promontory on the coast of Troy.

Achillis, hero of the Iliad. A mound is still pointed out as the tomb of Achilles.

Qui....inveneris, "who has found;" i.e., since you have found. H. 519.

Obruiisset; for subj., H. 510, 1.

Noster hic Magnus; noster in contrast to ille above. Pompey, who at the time of this trial was in Pontus, is referred to.

Theophranes, an intimate friend of Pompey, who wrote a history of his campaign in the East.

Civitate donavit. H. 384, 1.

Rustici ac milites, "of rustic habits, and mere soldiers;" hence not likely to care particularly for literary distinction.

25. Credo, "I suppose," both here and in the following sentence to mark irony.

Ut....donaretur, "that he should be presented with citizenship by some commander of ours." For subj., H. 492, 1.

Potuit. H. 510, 2; 512, 2.

Sulla....repudiasset. H. 503, 2, 1); 510.

Quem nos, etc., "that Sulla, whom we know (once saw) in a public assembly, when a wretched poet from among the common people had presented a petition to him, because he had composed an epigram on him (in his praise), only in alternate verses somewhat long, to have at once ordered a reward to be given," etc. The merit of the piece was its metrical regularity, in alternate hexameters and pentameters; it was not true poetry.

Quem, subject of jubere. This construction not so common in Cicero as in Cæsar, for example.

Qui....expetisset, the antecedent of qui is is, subject of expetisset.

Tamen, "yet," refers to mali.

26. Per Luculos. L. Metellus Pius was first cousin of the Luculli.

Impetravisset, potential subj. What is its object?

Qui....cuperet, etc., "especially as he (Metellus) so much desired that a history of his affairs should be written."

Cordubæ natus, "born at Cordova," a town in Spain, the birthplace of Lucan and the two Senecas.

Pingue quiddam....peregrinum, “though uttering (sounding) something rude (dull) and provincial.”

Aures, “attention.”

---

CHAPTERS XI. AND XII.

The love of fame, a natural and praiseworthy instinct.
Cicero felt additional interest in his friend, seeing that his own consulship might be immortalized by his writings. Conclusion.—He asks that Archias be ranked among them as a citizen, because (1) of his personal literary merits; (2) of his legal claims; (3) of the fame which he had already conferred upon the Roman people.

Hoc, “this ;” i.e., our love of fame.

Sed....ferendum, “but to be openly acknowledged by us.”

Optimus quisque, etc., “the nobler a man is the more he is influenced by fame.” H. 458, 1.

Libellis. Why not libris?

In eo ipso, etc., “in that very instance in which they proclaim their contempt for panegyric and notoriety, they desire to have their fame and name preserved.”

Predicari, used impersonally.

27. Decimus Brutus, grandfather of the Brutus who aided in Cæsar’s assassination.

Templorum. Pliny speaks of a temple built by him in honor of Mars, near the circus Flaminus.

Martis, meton. for belli.

Prope armati, "fresh from the scene of war;" lit., "almost armed."

Togati, "in the garb of peace."

A....honore....abhorrrere, "to disregard the honor."

28. Me....indicabo, "I will reveal myself," i.e., my own feelings.

Quas res; doubtless referring to the part he took against Catiline.

Attigit hic....inchoavit, "this one has touched upon and begun to celebrate in verse." From inchoavit, it would appear that the poem was not finished.

Quibus auditis, "and when I heard these verses" (of Archias).

Laudis et gloriae. H. 396, V.

Quid est quod....exerceamus, "what reason is there why?" Supply propter with quod. H. 501, I. 1.

29. Si nihil....in posterum, "if the soul did not look forward into the future."

Eisdem, i.e., regionibus, "by the same limits."

Frangeret, "exhaust," break down.

Augeretur. H. 465, 1.

Nunc, "now, indeed," as matters actually stand — a transition from the supposition in si nihil, etc.

Virtus, power, impulse.

Noctes ac dies. Construction?

Non....dimitendum, "ought not to let pass into forgetfulness;" lit., "to be measured off with."

30. Parvi animi, "if so narrow a mind." Cicero seldom uses this genitive. H. 401.

Usque....spatium, "even to the last moment of life."

Statuas et imagines; the former, statues, placed in temples and public places; the latter, busts and portraits, often wax images of ancestors, kept in their atria.

Summis ingenii, "by men of the highest talent."

Expressam et politam. "accurately drawn and nicely finished; i.e., drawn to the life, with all the polish of which it is capable."

Omnia....spargere—me disseminare. Omnia, object of spargere and disseminare, of which me is subject.

In gerendo, "in the midst of doing them."

A meo sensu....est, "will be beyond the reach of my consciousness."

Sapientissimi homines, Socrates, Plato, etc., who taught the immortality of the soul.

Mei, "of my very self."

Nunc quidem certe, "now, indeed, at all events."

Cogitatione....speque, "by some anticipation and hope of it."

31. Pudore eo, "of such modest worth." Abl. charac., H. 428.

Quem. Antecedent?

Vetustate, "by their long-continued intimacy."

Causa ejusmodi, "with such a cause." Abl. charac..

Beneficio legis, "by the favor of the law" (of Silvanus and Carbo).

Municipii=Heraclea.

Si qua....debet esse, "if....should be of any weight."

Humana, "on the part of men;" divina, "on the part of gods."

Ornavit, "has celebrated."

Profitetur, in his forthcoming poem, "De Ciceronis Consulatu."

His recentibus....periculis, Cataline's conspiracy, crushed only the year before.

Itaque=sanctique.

In vestram....fidem, "under your assured protection."

32. Quæ de causa, etc.; construe, Confido, judices, ea quæ pro mea consuetudine, dixi de causa breviter simpliciterque, probata esse omnibus.

Probata... omnibus, "have approved themselves, even while I spoke, to all of you." H. 388, 1.

Communiter de ipsius studio, "concerning his pursuit in general;" i.e., generally on the art of poetry.

In bonam partem accepta, "taking in good part;" literally, "received and placed upon the side of good."

Qui judicium exercet "who conducts the trial," viz., Q. Cicero, brother of the speaker, who as prætor presided on this occasion.

Certo, "certainly." Certe usually="at least," "at any rate." Certe scio=certum est me scire, "I am fully convinced." Certo scio=certum est quod scio, "my knowledge is accurate," etc.

RETRANSLATION.

SHORT IMITATIVE EXERCISES.

---

As far as possible use Cicero's language and imitate his style.

CHAPTER I.

1. Translate, and, from your own translation, retranslate, “Quod si....debemus.” “Etenim ...continentur.”
2. Turn into Latin, “And, lest any one should chance to wonder that this is asserted by me, not even I have been wholly devoted to this one pursuit.” “I will cause you to think that Archias is truly one of us.”

CHAPTER II.

1. “Quod si mihi....fuisse.” “Sed ne....abhorreat.”
2. “A person of this description has been very little represented in controversies.” “He never failed to display his knowledge of oratory.”

CHAPTER III.

1. “Hac tanta....Catulo.” “Sed jam....senectuti.”
2. “For as soon as Archias emerged from boyhood, he gave himself to literary pursuits.” “It happens to some men to be in power many years.”

CHAPTER IV.

1. "Hic tu....onnes." "An non....auctoritatem."
2. "Inasmuch as this state was (on terms) of the most equal privilege, he wished himself to be enrolled in that state." "After a somewhat long interval, the official proof was secured."

CHAPTER V.

1. "Quæ cum....adscriptus." "Quære....revincesur."
2. "The tables of Appius, it is well known, were kept very carelessly." "This man was reported to the senate among many others."

CHAPTER VI.

1. "Me autem....retardarit." "Sed pleni....accederet."
2. "Let those be ashamed who have so buried themselves in literary pursuits as to find no time for public duties." "My desire for riches has never kept me from duty."

CHAPTER VII.

1. "Ego multus....fateor." "Nam ceteræ....rusticantur."
2. "Cicero says that we should regard this occupation of the mind as tending to refinement." "Men of prudence and character say that he has great oratorical ability."

CHAPTER VIII.

1. "Sit igitur....moveamur." "Quod si....videremus."
2. "How often have I seen this Archias make verses relating to public affairs!" "Archias claims this privilege in his own right."

CHAPTER IX.

1. "Ergo illi....celebrandam." "Neque enim....patiatur."
2. "The war against Mithridates was a severe contest, and it was well described by this man." "With this man as commander, a triumph will be celebrated at Rome."

CHAPTER X.

1. "Nam si....continentur." "Itaque....potuit."
2. "I suppose if Archias had not been a citizen, he would not have brought this to pass." "Shall we not admit him to citizenship?"

CHAPTER XI.

1. "Quare in qua....abhorrere." "Nullam enim....exerceamus."
2. "Are there not implanted in every good man certain principles of virtue?" "Who says that the soul does not look forward into the future?"

CHAPTER XII.

1. "Hæc vero....delector." "Quæ de causa... certo scio."
2. "Wherefore preserve this man of modesty and virtue."
"It is said that Cicero's brother conducted this trial."

CICERO PRO ARCHIA.

VOCABULARY.

A, abbr. for the cognomen Aulus. Upon voting tablets, A. denoted absolvo. In dates, A.D.=ante diem; A.U.C.=anno urbis conditae.

ā, āb, abs, prep. with abl., (Sansc. apa; Greek ἀπό), a, only before consonants; ab, before vowels and consonants; abs, confined almost exclusively to the combination abs te. Cicero latterly preferred a te, in which he was followed by later authors. The fundamental signification of ab is departure from some given point, (opposite of ad, = motion to a fixed point). Hence=from, away, out of; down from; since, after; by, by means of.

ab-dico, ēre, āvi, ātum, tr. (dico, to proclaim), to resign, refuse, renounce.

ab-dītus, a, um, part. and adj. (abdo), hidden, concealed.

āb-eo, īre, ii, ītum, intr. to go away, depart.

āb horreo, ēre, ui, intr. (horreo, to shrink from), to be free from, at variance with, to disregard, differ from.

ablātus, a, um, part. (aufero), carried off, swept away, destroyed.

absens, entis, part. (absent), absent, at a distance; illo absente, "in his absence."

abs-trāho, ēre, traxi, tractum, tr., to draw or drag away, withdraw, remove, detach, alienate.

ab-sum, esse, fui, intr., to be absent, away or distant from; beyond the reach of.

ac, conj., and, as, than; aliter ac, "otherwise than;" idem ac fuit, "the same as he was."

accēdo, ēre, cessi, cessum, intr. (ad, cedo), to go near to, approach; to be added=passive of addo.

acceptus, a, um, part. and adj. (accepio), welcome, agreeable.

accido, ēre, cidi, intr. (ad capio), to fall, fall upon; befall, occur, happen.

WORKS FOR TEACHERS AND STUDENTS, BY JAS. L. HUGHES.

Examination Primer in Canadian History.

On the Topical Method. By JAS. L. HUGHES, Inspector of Schools Toronto. A Primer for Students preparing for Examination. Price, 25c.

Mistakes in Teaching.

By JAS. LAUGHLIN HUGHES. Second edition.

Price, 50c.

ADOPTED BY STATE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA, AS AN ELEMENTARY WORK FOR USE OF TEACHERS.

This work discusses in a terse manner over one hundred of the mistakes commonly made by untrained or inexperienced Teachers. It is designed to warn young Teachers of the errors they are liable to make, and to help the older members of the profession to discard whatever methods or habits may be preventing their higher success.

The mistakes are arranged under the following heads :

1. Mistakes in Management. 2. Mistakes in Discipline. 3. Mistakes in Methods. 4. Mistakes in Manner.

How to Secure and Retain Attention.

By JAS. LAUGHLIN HUGHES.

Price, 25 Cents.

Comprising Kinds of Attention. Characteristics of Positive Attention. Characteristics of The Teacher. How to Control a Class. Developing Mental Activity. Cultivation of the Senses.

(From THE SCHOOL AND UNIVERSITY MAGAZINE, LONDON, ENG.)

"Replete with valuable hints and practical suggestions which are evidently the result of wide experience in the scholastic profession."

Manual of Drill and Calisthenics for use in Schools.

By J. L. HUGHES, Public School Inspector, Toronto, Graduate of Military School, H. M. 29th Regiment.

Price, 40 Cents.

The work contains : The Squad Drill prescribed for Public Schools in Ontario, with full and explicit directions for teaching it. Free Gymnastic Exercises, carefully selected from the best German and American systems, and arranged in proper classes. German Calisthenic Exercises, as taught by the late Colonel Goodwin in Toronto Normal School, and in England. Several of the best Kindergarten Games, and a few choice Exercise Songs. The instructions throughout the book are divested, as far as possible, of unnecessary technicalities.

"A most valuable book for every teacher, particularly in country places. It embraces all that a school teacher should teach his pupils on this subject. Any teacher can use the easy drill lessons, and by doing so he will be conferring a benefit on his country."—C. RADCLIFFE DEARNALY, Major First Life Guards, Drill Instructor Normal and Model Schools, Toronto.

NEW BOOKS BY DR. MCLELLAN.

The Teacher's Handbook of Algebra.

Revised and enlarged. By J. A. MCLELLAN, M. A., LL. D., Inspector of High Schools, Ontario.

Price, $1.25

Teacher's Hand Book of Algebra---Part I.

Abridged Edition. Containing portions of the above suitable for Intermediate Students.

Price, 75 Cents.

Key to Teacher's Hand Book. Price,$1.50.

It contains over 2,500 Exercises, including about three hundred and fifty solved examples, illustrating every type of question set in elementary Algebra.

It contains complete explanation of Horner's Multiplication and Division, with application not given in the Text-Books.

It contains a full explanation of the principles of symmetry, with numerous illustrative examples.

It contains a more complete illustration of the theory of divisors, with its beautiful applications, that is to be found in any text-book.

It contains what able mathematical teachers have pronounced to be the "finest chapter on factoring that has ever appeared."

It contains the latest and best methods of treatment as given by the great Masters of Analysis.

It contains the finest selections of properly classified equations, with methods of resolution and reduction, that has yet appeared.

It contains a set of practice papers made up by selecting the best of the questions set by the University of Toronto during twenty years.

It is a key of the methods, a repertory of exercises, which cannot fail to make the teacher a better teacher, and the student a more thorough algebraist.

Read the following notices from the leading authorities in Great Britain and United States:

"This is the work of a Canadian Teacher and Inspector, whose name is honorably known beyond the bounds of his native province, for his exertions in developing and promoting that admirable system of public instruction, which has placed the Dominion of Canada so high, as regards education, not only among the British Colonies, but among the civilized nations of the world. We know of no work in this country that exactly occupies the place of Dr. McLellan's, which is not merely a text book of Algebra, in the ordinary sense, but a Manual of Methods for Teachers, illustrating the best and most recent treatment of algebraical problems and solutions of every kind."

FROM BARNES' EDUCATIONAL MONTHLY, N. Y.

"The best American Algebra for Teachers that we have ever examined."
